Protect Penalty Rates.

Weekends matter. They're a night out with friends, catching a match and spending time with your family.

But for the people who serve us in restaurants and shops, care for our elderly and sick, keep our buildings safe and clean, or drive our ambulances, weekends are another work day.

A report commissioned by the Federal Government recommends slashing penalty rates. This would hit hundreds of thousands of weekend workers with a massive pay cut they can't afford and don't deserve.

“Employers urge PM to legislate for Sunday penalty rates cut”

05/08/15 - Australian Financial Review

Cutting penalty rates without compensation is simply a cut to low paid workers' take home pay.

Community support is on our side, so we have a great opportunity to Save Our Weekends. But we need to join together and speak out now.
