A cut to penalty rates is a cut to our take-home pay that we can't afford and don't deserve.

Protect Penalty Rates.

A report commissioned by the Federal Government has just been released. It recommends major cuts to weekend rates for hundreds of thousands of weekend workers.

This would mean a huge pay cut that people working weekends can't afford and don't deserve.

Cutting penalty rates without compensation is simply a cut to low paid workers' take home pay.

We can't just stand by and let this happen, so we are getting together to do something about it.

"Push on to wipe out double time for cafe, restaurant and retail staff"

The Guardian 6/8/15

We know most Australians don't want these changes, so we have a great opportunity to Save Our Weekend. If we speak up now, we can stop these bad ideas.

But we can't do it by ourselves. So join the campaign, and together let's protect penalty rates and Save Our Weekends.
